

Each individual member of my household has today received a leaflet, in separate envelopes.

At the very least you could have just posted one leaflet per household and not outsourced the delivery to Royal Mail. How much did this cost??

I don't often raise such concerns, but this just struck me as being utterly tone-deaf in the current economic climate.